Musicians and Theater Managers

Reach a Compromise. The strike of the orchestra musicians at Kernan's Lyceum, the Columbia and the New National theaters has been declared off, as exclusively foreshadowed in The Star yesterday. A compromise has been reached, by the terms of which the musicians will return to work Monday, it is stated.

The men went out because of the refusal of the managers to accede to the demands of the local union of an increase of pay to $18 and $20 per week, according to the number of performances given. President Joseph N. Weber of the American Federation of Musicians reached an agreement with the managers of the three theaters referred to whereby the men will be given an advance in pay based on percentage of their present salaries. Negotiations are on foot with the managers of the Academy of Music and the Lafayette Theater, and it is expected an agreement along the same general lines will be reached.

President Weber of the national organization and President Kerngood of the local union stated to a Star reporter this afternoon that there would be no further development until Wednesday, when it is expected terms will be reached with the managers of the other play houses.

EXEMPT FROM ASSESSMENT.

to Be Privileged. According to an epinion submitted to the Commissioners by Corporation Counsel Duvall parcels of land not embraced in any subdivision approved by the Commissioners and not incorporated in the permanent system of highways of the District, but merely set aside by metes and bounds, shall not be assessed for sewers where there is nossewer connection with the property.

The opinion was submitted in connection with the proposed assessment under the act of April 22, 1904, of part of lot 7. Blagden's subdivision of Argyle, owned by C. C. Armes, for water main, and in connection with the assessment for service sewer on the east side of Brightwood avenue, of parcels of load in the most of loan Corner. parcels of land in the names of John Cam-mack, Charles E. Ebel and George Field.

In consideration of the first case, the corporation counsel says:
"The legislation on the subject of assessment for water mains exhibits marked changes of public preperty, so far as suburban property is concerned. The application of any uniform rule alike to city and suburban property, based on either frontage or area, has resulted in manifest injustice and in the retardment of suburban improvement.

oan improvement. "Congress, by the provisions of the act of April 22, 1904, indicated a purpose to assimilate suburban lots laid out for building purposes to city lots and to approxi mately equalize the tax for water mains and sewers, the assessment of the larger suburban tracts being postponed until their subdivision into blocks or lots presumptively for building purposes.
"I am of the opinion that the phrase

'property in the county of Washington not subdivided into blocks or lots, or both' should be construed to embrace, first, all subdivisions of land that have been approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and, second, all subdivisions of land that have been incorpoated in the permanent system of highways of the District of Columbia.'

He then held that lot 7 in question is "property in the county of Washington not subdivided into blocks or lots, or both" within the meaning of the act of Congress. In regard to the holdings on the east side of Brightwood avenue in question. he said the parcels were conveyed to the respective parties by metes and bounds, and, therefore, come within the meaning of the act and are not to be assessed.

"As historian of the Army of the Potomac," continued Maj. Stine, "I am going to ask Congress to erect statues to Gens. Meade, Hooker, Baker, Stannard, Doubleday, Sedgwick, Hamilton and others. These will stand as guides to the star of patriotism for the youth of our land, and to strangers will be an object lesson on the permanent basis of the free institutions, which are the pillars of this great ions, which are the pillars of this great

Capt. Homer J. Lockling read a paper on "The effect of the Spanish-American war in the affairs of the world." He held that although the war was short-lived, its results have been great and will be even greater as time rolls on. The war with Spain was also an object lesson to the powers of Europe. It developed new features in the art of war and further illustrated the prowess of the American soldier as "an unyielding fighter."
